

Mercy House Shelters

Mercy House provides transitional shelters in an effort to end the cycle of homelessness, improve health and improve material and financial self sufficiency. To enter the shelter, participants must be homeless, not drug or alcohol dependent, employed, readily employable or going to school (specific criteria may vary by program)

Transitional Shelters

Transitional housing is available to residents for 6 - 24 months depending on individual case management plan. Every resident that lives in the shelter adheres to specific programs that promote their welfare. Each homeless individual that Mercy House serves receives direct personal care through the Planning for Success Program, Wellness Program, and Learning Matters Program.
